[From our Evening Edition of yesterday.] A Pecm Recited by Mr. Lincoin.

To the Editors of the Evening Post: I have been niged by several friends to send you the enclosed poem, written down by myself from Mr. Lincoln's lips, and al though it may not be new to all of you readers, the events of the last week give i now a peculiar interest.

The circumstances under which this co The circumstances under which this copy was written are these: I was with the President alone one evening in his room, during the time I was painting my large picture at the White House, last year. He presently threw aside his pen and papers, and began to talk to use of Shakespeare. He sent little "Tad," his son, to the library to bring a copy of the plays, and then read to me several of his favorite passages, showing genuine appreciation of the great poet. Relapsing into a sadder strain, he laid the book aside, and leaning back in his chair, book aside, and leaning back in his chair said:

"There is a poem which has been a gree favorite with une for years, which was firs shown to me when a young man by a friend and which I afterward saw and cut from newspaper and learned by heart, "would," he coutinued, "give a great deal t know who wrote it, but I have never been able to ascertain."

Then, half closing his eyes, he repeate to me the lines which I enclose to you Greatly pleased and interested, I told him I would like, if ever an opportunity occurred, to write them down from his lips. He said he would some time try togive them to me. A few days afterwards he asked me to accompany him to the temporary studio of Mr. Swayne, the sculptor, who was makin a bust of him at the Treasury Department While he was sitting for the bust I was sud-deuly remiuded of the poem, and said to him that then would be a good time to die tate it to me. He complied, and sitting upon some books at his feet, as nearly as can remember, I wrote the lines down. by one, from his lips.
With great respect, very truly yours,

ABRAHAM LINCOLN. At twenty-two numbers after seven o'clock in Saturday morning, about nine hours after he had received the shot of the assassin, Abraham Lincoln drew his last breath, surounded by the unembers of his family, his Cablnet, and leading political and personal riends. His death would, under any circumstances have produced an extraordic instances, have produced an extraordi-iry sensation, but accompanied by mur-erous violence, the feeling which has been reated has been the most intense. No single event of the present century in America can at all compare with it in effect on the opular mind, and we think that in Fug-aud the shock will be hearly as deeply lt. The grief which is expressed has two ery distinct origins, the stronger of which eurs to arlse from personal sympathy au regard for the deceased.

We hear in all quarters the strongest expressions of admiration of the character of Mr. Lincoln, and deep sorrow that his noble career should have been brought to au untimely end. His simplicity of character, his straightforward honesty, his kindliness, even his bluntness of mauner, seem to havve wou the popular heart, even among a freign, and, in manuer of opinion, a hosa foreign, and, in manner of opinion, a hos tile nation. We may judge by that fact his popularity among the citizens of the North States. Almost all ci us feel as if we d suffered a personal loss. Mr. Lincoln spoken of in the same terms as are use ward a familiar friend. All mourn his thmely fate. He had risen by industry bility and integrity to the great position of hief Magistrate of his country. He found in the most imminent dauger, and his wer to control the elements which wer eeping over the land were far from gener ly acknowledged. He was regarded ith fear and trembling by the friends o s government, and with contempt by his ponents. But steadily he made his way was not the best man who could have en luagined for the post of Chief Magisrate in a great civil war. He had not the ommauding force which infuses energy to all around him, and his public appear ces were often lacking in dignity. Buwas sagacious, patient, prudent, courgeous, honest and candid. If he did uo pire great Generals, he gave every un the army an opportunity of developing e talents within him. He recognized erit and rewarded it. He placed confi ence, as a rule, where it was due, and he ad his reward in great military successes, ome say that he has been cut off at a faorable moment for his reputation, but w anuot accept this view.

It seems to us that he had gone through is worst trials, that his patience, sagacity nd houesty would have borne even better with the settlement of the efficience of the settlement of the efficience of the settlement of t uits in the settlement of the affairs of the uth than during the wild commotion of war. He has been cut off at a time when, certainly, he had accomplished a great deal, but leaving much undone which he was well qualified to do. A naturally rong man, of only fifty-six, he might have oped to live many years after finishing his ork as President, in the enjoyment of the ect and admiration justly due to one had saved the li e of his country. He will be held, we think, by Americans, if not equal to Washington, second to none but he But he had not the gratification of his great oredecessor, of seeing his work completed and enjoying for a long period the gratitude of his countrymen and the admiration of trangers. The man who could have done all this, must have considered that the chances of escape were very few indeed, and that, if need were, he was ready to give up his own life for that which he had takeu. There is desperation in such a thought—such a desperation as is caused by a deep consciousuess of wrongdoing on the part of the persons against whom it is conceived.

THE RING OF THE TRUE METAL-HON. JOSEPH HOLT.

Every loyal Kentuckian will be deligh ed with the notable speech of the Hon Joseph Holt, which we publish to-day. He does not believe in handling rebels with white kid gloves, nor in washing their carcasses with rose water.

A CORRECTION AND MORE TOO. The Journal has caught us in an erroneous quotation from its editorial columns

We stand corrected. We had said:

It is not long since the editor [of the Jou It is not long since the editor [of the Jour-nat] made the uot over-gentle remark that the man who demanded the execution of violated law upon the rebel leaders "mu have a heart set on fire of hell."

We quoted from memory as the particular number of the Journal containing the paragraph we designed to quote was at the time mislaid. The Journal takes the mat ter up aud makes the preposterously furny mistake of supposing that w referred to the letter written the editor to E.M. Bruce of the rebel Con gress all about that "brave but erring boy," which letter fell into the hands of a nation al officer, and got thence into priut, calling out a card from Mr. Prentice, in which h says that any one who could condemn th letter aforesaid, "must have a heart set on fire of hell." The editor of the Journal i barking up very much the wrong tree That letter and that card and all the attendant circumstances were not in ou thoughts at the time we wrote the above paragraph.

Really, whilst we are not secure from making mistakes, nor above a frank acknowledgment of them when we do make them, we believe we are altogether incap ble mentally and morally of so egregio and ridiculous a perversion of another language as to derive from the "card" re ferred to, the sentiment we have attribute to the editor of the Journal. The editor right in saying that we didn't condemn hi letter to Mr. Bruce. Neither did we condemn his card respecting it, beyond the ex pression of some regret that he should hav felt moved to use in such a document h favorite rhetorical weapon!

The truth is that it is the frequent recurrence of the objectionable phrase, and o phrases nearly identical in meaning, tha has led us into our blundering quotation. The Journal says, "we made no such re mark as he says we did. We made no re mark akin to it, in even the hundreth degree." New let us see precisely what he did say. "Who that is not a devil doub damned will at a time like this talk of the hanging of the rebel leaders ?" &c., &c. Thi expression occurs in a leader in the Journa of March 31st, 1865. We, also, desire to pu a question here, which the reader may re gard as belonging to the "rule of three," as being a conuundrum, according to his

If it requires a "devil doubly dainned" to talk about the hanging of rebel leaders, what sort of a being is he who could express the vehement wish that the assassin of President Lincoln had twenty million cks for the hanging? Or what is the same thing, that he might undergo the fear ful ordeal of hanging twenty million times? It is hardly necessary to suggest in passing, that there is something remote ly akin, bearing just a far-off, dim resem blance to the geuuine quotation above, is the erroneous one which we cheerfu!l apologize for. There is, however, a differ rence. It is the difference between a very wicked man, still in a state of probatiou and an infinitely wicked devil, beyond the reach of hope or grace! The fact is, we had accidenta ly "drawn it mild." The genu ine quotation is many degrees more ferocious and absurd than the bogus.

And now in all earnestness we again desire to know what sense, justice, or philanthropy is there in execrating in the mounmeasured terms J. Wilkes Booth, and in the same breath denouncing with bitter ness any who suggest that Jefferson Davis ought to be treated if caught, as a felon who has incurred the severest penalties which a Christian nation can inflict? It seems to us that the views of our neighbor on this whole subject are of that crude, unstable, inharmoulous character which betrays at altogether impulsive origin. The ring-leaders of this foul conspiracy against the nation, treated him when on a sorrowful errand to their capital with considerate

It is certainly no dishonor to him that he feels grateful for it. And we think none the less of those leaders that they thus ex-Libited some remaining streaks of goo will. Let it pass for all it is worth; go just as far as it will in mitigating enmity to them. But many and many a celebrated robber in history has exhibited in a similar manner the fragments of broken and repu diated virtue clinging to his demonized character. Booth himself is probably an example. Had be been in place of the mer who tendered courtesies to the editor of the Journai, he might have won from him th same gushing and grateful sympathy.

His crime was more violent, and require more desperate valor than any deed per formed by Jeff. Davis during the war; be we do sloutly maintain that the spirit of i so no whit worse, its malice no deeper, that that which has been the steady-flaming animus of Jeff. Davis throughout the struggle We have no vindictive or blood-thirst feeling towards any of these wretche criminals. We would spare and forgive and embrace with all charity, just so many of them as would be consonant with public safety provided they repent and seek forgive ness. The Journal seems to think that the difficulty of deciding who, and how many shall be exempted from pardon, is so formidable as to render universal pardon an imperative necessity, embracing penitent and impenitent alike.

We admit the difficulty, but not the degree claimed for it. It is not insuperable. And, besides, the remedy seems worse to us than the disease. Even the Journal admits that one man should be hung if he is caught, and only regrets that it cannot be repeated twenty million times! A majority of loyal people will vote that one more, a certain J. D., should also be hung. There will be little difficulty then in agreeing up- of action. It is pre-eminently solitary and on at least (**e*) exempts from pardon, unsocial. A slugle arm may do a desperate But we trust no one desires that either of deed. And if each individual in a whole those culprits should be executed without army fights on a given occasion with that trial. And whatever circumstances attend-textremity of valor which we call "despeing their trial may furnish the basis of a plea for mercy, should be vigilantly heeded. Now, we would have the menace of a rial for life hang over the rebel Cabinet and Congress, the general officers of the ebel army, the Governors of rebel States, and all the renegades from official positions inder the United States Government, whatever their present position may be. Let all such know that, if they remain in this country they must take their, chances of such a trial. In fact, such a meuac night prove just the touch-stone we need or testing the real quality of these offeners. Those who are truly penitent, who leplore with their whole might and soul, their participation in treason will be likely o remain and do "works meet for repentace" and trust the clemency of a magnanmous people. Those who would submit to rightful authority with the spirit of a caged tiger, will escape to some congenial ungle before the cage closes up! In a maority of 'instances' the former class would ever be brought to trial.

The Journal talks as though there were no intermediate status for rebels between mmediate, uncomfitional, and unsought rdon, and immediate execution.

We never expect to see or to hear of the xecution of many rebel leaders. The orst, most dangerous of them will get out f the country forthwith. Let the possibility of retribution cling as a needed and wholesome restraint to the balance of them. rindicate by their conduct their claim to

DELIBERATE DEVILTRY OF CLER-ICAL TRAITORS.

Original secession had no abler or more rsistent advocates than Southern Preachers of the Gospel. They were, as a general n the original treason of this rebellion as any class of the community. The excepous to this rule in the cotton States were very few, and whenever they were discovred, the parties were either persecuted insilence or driven ruthlessly from their mes and their property confiscated. d with these "clerical traitors" to a very arge extent, and they were not confined to my particular sect or denomination. Kenicky has perhaps suffered from these pesilent pious traitors more than any other State, for she has been, and is now the reeptacle of those who have been expelled om the loyal congregations of Missouri, inois, Indiana and Ohio, In Kentucky here always seems to be a congregation of cession sympathisers" ready to receive ne disloyal Preachers of the Gospel from he loyal States and to give them a hearty

These "clerical traitors" always pretend extra piety. They are opposed to mixng politics and religion. Their mission is "Preach Christ and him crucified," and nd to know nothing else. They "thank od that they are not as other men," mixng up the "secular with the religious," and ounding the "things which belong to sar with the things belonging to God." This pious cant has been dinned into the ars of loyal men so long and so persistenty, that it is fully time its hypocrisy should exposed. This pretended piety is all a schood and a sham, and the greater poron of these disloyal preachers in this city Burning Words of Joe Holt.

We intend to show the people of Kenucky the falsehood and hollowuess of this tended piety, and we shall from time to ince lay before them such facts as will sience and shame these "clerical traitors," f, indeed, they are not lost to shame.

Below will be found an article cut fro he columns of the Louisville Journal and blished in the fall of 1863, which shows what the spirit and animus of these "clerial traitors" really are. If the spirit of this Christlan Advocate" is not akin to that of devil incarnate we know not where to ok for it. This is a fair specimen of the chings of these secession preachers, as comulgated by themselves when they were ec to give utterance to their real opinion: REBEL TRACTS .- Our readers are aware o ne pious excritons of the Nashville Book concern for farnishing religious food in the eginning of the rebellion. We have had one of its persuasive productions in our of-fice for a year or so, and it has been most anxiously inspected. The following review of its merits appeared in the Nashville

Methodist Christiau Advocate, of Februar We are arming men with a weapon nev this war and in modern warfare gene rally, but a most effective weapon, as it will compel the Southern soldier to do his best fighting points, and throw the Northerner his worst, to-wit: haud to hand fighting. his weapon is the pike, a large number aving been and still being manufactured aving been and still being manufactured, nder an appropriation by the Legislature, he Alabama pike consists of a keen, two-lged steel blade, like a large bowie-knife lade, near a foot and a haif long, with a ckle-like hook, very sharp, bending back on near the socket, This is Intended for atting the bridles of cavalrymen, or ulling them off their horses, or catching old of the enemy when they are running old of the enemy when they are ruuning way. This head is mounted on a stat ghi feet long. A gleaning row of these rful implements of slaughter bearing wn upon them at the pas de charge would ike the terror of ten thousand deaths to apprehensive souls of the Yankees. ve won more and more decided victorie an we have, had there not been an ounce gunpowder, except for artillery pur-ses, in the Confederacy. Then the South-ms must have come to close quarters, and eir superior physical prowess and nerve publishave made their victories deadly and eicited.

The pike is a voracious and long lived sh, but the Alabama pike is a defunct spees, and did no great execution while i ras extant. As an evidence of the spirit fa Christian Advocate in the early days f rebeldom, we shall preserve our specien for a cabinet, to illustrate hereafter the ontology of the late rebellion.

THE CLIMAX OF TREASON. There is some reason to hope that the assination of President Lincoln marks, a rning point in the conspiracy against th ation's life, of first-class importance. Medcal men are familiar with many a disease which displays its highest degree of energy makes its most formidable assault, at the ery moment of its recoll, baffled and conmered by the vitality it has assailed. The ountry was held in expectancy for several veeks prior to the fall of Richmond awaiting one final, wild, desperate effort of the ouspirators to break through the fatal toils hat were closing them in.

Some such effort was made at last, but it was imperfect; it failed, both in dash and persistency, and especially in the latter. The reader will remember that we did not fully share in the expectation that the final struggle would be signally formidable and desperate on the part of the rebel army, and for the reason that desperation is not a variety of passion which facilitates concer rate," it is because each man feels that the case is a deeperate one for himself per-

But the slave-l'older's conspiracy has done, in a wholly in texpected manner, its mad, wild act of utter and frenzied desperation. The true anim us of the conspiracy appeared in that act. Its cat-like stealth and ferocity, together with the judicial blindness with which it would seem diine wrath has smitten it fron the first ere exhibited in all their revolting ugliness in that deed. Thousands upon thousands of people will gain from the event a fresh lusight into the criminality of this re bellion. And as we anticipated in the first comments we were moved to make upor t, prominent rebels already within our army lines, have felt constrained to de nounce the atrocity spontaneously and withou qualification. The telegraph brings us word that Cler

Lee and Roger A. Pryor, together with thers in Richmond and Petersburg con demn and deplore the deed, with great emphasis. It is announced that Gen. Lee ls preparing a public address on the subject for his fellow-citizens, and that Mr. Prvoi s advertised to speak upon it in Petersburg. We are disposed to credit these gentlemen with correct and humane motive in thus promptly repudlating this frightfu crime, notwithstanding it was committed in behalf of the cause which they still cherish in their regretful hearts. And if they and let anmesty and pardon be extended give the crime its true name, and labor radually and individually to them as they with their erring countrymen to convince them of its heinousness the fact should, and undoubtedly will be remembered in their favor when the reckoning comes for their own offenses against the nation. For aside from the fact that they do thereby show that they are not wholl > demonized, that there is still some moral life and health left in them, their infinence hing, as deeply and as earnestly engaged will doubtless be considerable on those to whom they appeal, in awakening some just sense of the wickedness as well as the blunder of the act. And who shall say that the result will not hasten the unqualified submission of those who are thus impressed, to rightful authority? It seems to us altogether reasonable to anticipate this. eutucky and Tennessee were also infest- As one sound may, by its superior loudness, drown another, as one disease may supplant another a little less malignant than Itself; as grief may be eclipsed with grief that is still more poignaut; as the spectacle of bitterer sor ow than his own may beget in the mourn er patience and resignation, or the spectacle of immoderate anger produce wholesome disgust in the mind of one given to violence of temper; as all terriffic displays of evil are likely to stun and paralyze evils of an inferior pitch of malignity, so perchance the judisputable ferocity and diabolism of this extraordinary murder will stun the traitor-drunken'heart of the South into sobriety and penitonce. And we may venture to hope that the tragedy in Ford's Theater, occurring as it dld on the anuiversary of the equally wanton and hardly less infernal deed in Charleston Harbor four years ago, was the final flourish, the last frantic thrust of treason, as it recolled bafiled and raging, into the abyss of hel

JUDGE ADVOCATE GENERAL HOLT. Judge Holt, in responding to Gen. Ander-on, said: It was not uncommon for organations in treason or in crime on a vas ale to commit mistakes in the selection of ents to accomplish their work; and r nan in all history had committed a greater histake than Floyd in the selection of Gen Anderson, on the sole ground of his being Southern man, to command Fort Sumter. Te thought to find in him a tool of treason, but found a loyal, fearless and true man. Those who have lead great treasonable enerprises, or great crimes, had suffered mos rom mingled rage and angry fear, when hey discovered such mlstakes in the selecou of their agents, and none had suffered more in this respect than Floyd, at hearing of the transfer of the small but devoted garon from Fort Moultri to the solid walls

The speaker said there was one mau still n the service of the Government, who wa with Floyd at the time, and could bear evi ence to the rage of the defeated traitor nd that man, with giant brain and stead ast heart, had for three years then presi ded at the War Department—Edwin M. Stanton. [Cheers.] It would be remembered that, before the breaking out of hosities, the great and mighty State of outh Carolina had sent three Peace Comissioners to make terms with the United States. It had taken the Federal Government a long time to find its Peace Commis sioners to act with them, in their proper places. But within the year past they had ound their places and been doing their work effectually. Grant, Sherman, Gill-more, Farragut, and scores of other heroinen, had by their agency, brought us near to peace that we can see the dawn of the happy day. The rebellion is breaking away. The scoundrels tho had originated this stupendous treuson, and turned our land into an Asceldem—who act upon their heads and on their hands the od of half a million of men-could neve blood of hulf a million of men—could never be allowed by this Government to receive par-don for their crimes. [Cheers.] If the Gov-ernment should offer release to these crimi-nals, it would make itself a participator in their crimes. [Cheers.] The speaker thanked God that the people understood the causes of the rebellion; that they knew out of what horrid roots this treason had grown up; and that they the they knew out of what horrid roots this treason had grown up; and that they, the people, by their mighty will, peacefully and lawfuily, would fling secession and stavery into the abyss of treason, and get rid of both together. [Great cheers.] Out of this would spring a regenerated South; industry would be honored and protected in its rights, the family relations maintained inviolate the rights of the humblest individviolate, the rights of the humblest individual guarded as jealously as those of the proudest; reciprocal exchanges established proudest; reciprocal exchanges established and fostered, as a compact between all sec-tions of the Federal Union; and all encir eled by the power of religion, justice, an numane laws; and in that day the anthem of praise from a united, prospero happy American people would fill the EFFECTS OF SLAVERY-REPUGEES RE FURNING.—A Pittsburg paper says of recent consignment of refugees to that plat "Before their arrival, houses had bee secured for them all, women and children (there were no men in the party), but the would have to earn their living, as hone people generally do in this part of the cour The parties to whom they were entrusted all their eloquence to persuade them to go to their new homes and try working for a living, but they wanted to go back to the plantations what they cum frum,' some said frankly, others said, 'its too cold h'yer in we ar'nt used to the doins here, 'n with ingit along better down that, what we kin git along better down that, what we kin cut 'n tote our own wood 'n raise a patch of This they strenuously objected cut 'n tote our own wood, 'n raise a patch rn, 'n let a hog or two run in the market hiev a few hills o' sweet taters.' all effort in their behalf had to be confin to the collection of a few dollars for the benefit, and the securing of a passage dow to Nashville for them. The captain of the Maggie Hays generously offered to tak them back as far as Louisville, and mon enough was placed in his hands for ther to secure their reshipment thence to Nas-No stronger instance of the blight ing effects of the institution of slavery, its immediate fruit, rebellion, could found than these miserable people. Entirely ignorant, their mental capacities al iguorant, their mental most a blank, disgustingly filthy, ragge and swarming with vermin, haling wo and seemingly without purpose or prospect in life, they are just about as low in the scale of humanity as any beings one is likely to find except Digger Indians or Hot-

Seats for the Tableaux can be secured at the music store of D. P. Faulds, Friday and Saturday, April 21st and 22d.

FOR DISLOYALTY .- There have been qui a large number of arrests in this city with in the last week for disloyalty. The arrest were mostly made for manifestations of jo over the assassination of President Lincol A number of cases of this kind were di posed of by the Provost Marshal yesterda in the following manner: Charles Liudle sent to the fortifications for thirty days, hard labor, at the expiration of which te he will be required to take the oath of all giance and give bond in the sum of $1,0 for the faithful observance of the sam Henry Hollingsed, slxiy days' hard lub-on the fortifications, and oath and bond of $1,000; J. W. Knowland, forty days' her lator on the fortifications, and oath ar bond of $2,000; and J. H. McAlister, thir days' hard labor on the fortifications, au oath and bond of $1,000.

SAD ACCIDENT AT THE NASHVILLE DEror.—Λ man named Thomas Brislene, employed at the Nashville depot, had his two legs broken and both feet crushed in a terrible manner vesterday. He was uncoup-ling a car from the front of an engine, and when about to move out from between then one of his feet caught in a frog, or between two rails of a switch, where they connect The locomotive moved forward and he wa unable to get out of the way, the cow-eatch or striking him near the ankles, tearing the sole of one of his boots off, breaking both of his legs and crushing his feet terribly. He was carried to his home, on Madison street, between Preston and Jackson.

ACCIDENTALLY KILLED .- We learn that Mr. Edward Thurston, master mechanic on the Kentneky Central Railroad, was killed Thursday afternoon, nea: Falmouth, on that road, by accident. The particulars of the unfortunate occurrence are as follows: Mr. T. was engaged, with a number of others, in getting some cars on the track near Falmouth, Ky., and while prosecuting the work, the coupling chain of the locomotive broke, and the rebound caused it tstrike him on the forehead, producing almost instant death. Deceased was a most worthy citizen an useful man, and his los will be greatly deplored. OATH OF ALLEGIANCE.-Wm. W. Coleman, of Meade county, deserter from Horseley's rebel battalion, took the oath of Horseley's rebel battalion, took the oath of allegiance at the Provost Marshal's office yesterday and was released, having given himself up for that purpose.

Mrs. Fanny Conway and Miss Sarah Conway were arrested yesterday for disloyalty, and afterwards released on taking the oath of allegiance at the Provost Marshal's office, which they did very reluctantly.

THE TABLEAUX ON MONDAY NIGHT .-- Although our citizens have been accustomed to very rare excellence in the presentation of these beautiful pictures, we are confiden that they dream not of what is in store for them next week. A glimpse or two that we caught of the elaborately prepared scenery and properties to illustrate some of the casts, convinced us that the promised entertainment will be vastly ahead of any thing of the kind every attempted here before. METHODISTS OF LOUISVILLE.—The loyal band of Methodists have purchased the church and lot on Market street, near Eighth, lately occupied by the Baptists, but owned by the Universalist society. The church is to be opened by this society tomorrow. Preaching at 11 A. M., and at 7½ P. M.

LOYALTY IN PRESBYTERIAN CHURCHES There are two churches in this city—the First and Second Presbyterian—whose loyalty has never been in good repute, and who owed it to themselves, and a decent respect to the sentiments of a loyal community. nity, to purge themselves of any suspicio of approval of the diabolical assassinatio of the President of the United States b holding appropriate services on Wednesday last. And yet both these churches were closed. Why was this? It has been been custom for the central Presbyteria churches on Fast and Thanksgiving day o unite and hold a common service is the party of the party ne one church, the pastors jointly officing. On this occasion, the Chestnueet Church was open, and some from e other churches were present, but either of the pastors of the First and econd churches were there to joln in the rvices. As Rev. J. L. McKee in his ex-llent address well said, silence will not do t a time like this—every man must sho is disapproval of the horrid scene enacte t Washington by open and loud denune on. Can any explanation be given of conduct of these two churches? Surel is necessary.

Mh. President: I take much pleasure it prescribing to you this delegation of the cities of Illinois, representing almost every cortion of the State. We are drawn togeth or by the mournful events of the past fevel ays, to give some feeble expression to the cellings we, in common with the whole na on, realize as pressing us to the earth, appropriate and respectful coremonies. We thought it not inappropriate, before we should separate even in this sad hour, to should separate even in this sad liour, it seek this interview with your Excellency that while the bleeding heart is puring out it mournful anguish at the death of our belove late President, the idol of our State and the pride of the whole country, we may sarnestly express to you, the living head of this nation, our deliberate, full, and abiding confidence in you as the one who it these dark hours must bear upon yourselves. he mighty responsibility of maintaining lefending, and directing its affairs. In the nidst of this sadness, through the oppres sive gloom that surrounds us, we look t you and a bright future for our country The assassination of the President of th United States deeply depresses and severely aggravates the entire nation. But unde our blessed constitution it does not delay or for any great leugth of time retard, is progress; does not for an instan-isorganize or threaten its destruction The record of your whole past life, fa-miliur to all, the splender of your receu-gigantic efforts to stay the hand of treason and assassinution, and restore the flag to the uttermost bounds of the republic, assure that noble State which we represe and we believe the people of the United states, that we may safely trust our destinies in your hands; and to this end we come in the name of the State of Illinois and, we confidently believe, fully and faithfully expressing the wishes of our people to the state of the terms of the state of the terms of ple to present and pleage to you the collal, earnest and unremitting purpose dilal, earnest and unremitting purpose of our State to give your Administration the he Administration of our lamented las

President, the policy of which we have accretofore, do now and shall continue to in The President replied:
I have listened with profound emotion to the kind words you have addressed me The visit of this large delegation to speak o me through you these words of eucourage neut I had not anticipated in the midst se saddeniug circumstances which sur and us, and the immeuse responsibility own upon me an expression of the confince of individuals, and still more of an ntluential body like that before me, repr senting a great commonwealth, cheers an strengthens my heavily burdened mind. I am at a loss for words to respond i in hour like this of the deepest sorrow were it possible to embody in words the feelings of my bosom, I could not command my lips to utter them. Perhaps the best reply I could make, and one most readily appropriate to your kind assurances of confidence, would be to receive them in silent the throbbings of my heart, since the sad catastrophe which has appalled us, cannot be reduced to words; ind oppressed as I am with new and grear responsibilities which have devolved upon new and saddened with grief, I can with lifticulty respond to you at all; but I can not permit such an expression of confidence reposed in me by the people to pass without an acknowledgment. To individuals ike myself who have never claimed much nt who have, it is true, received from for a long time, an occasion like this and manifestations of public feeling so well timed, are peculiarly acceptable. Springing from the people myself, every pulsation of the popular heart finds an immediate answer in my own. By many men nswer in my own. By many men a public life such occasions are often con red mcrely formal. To me they ar eal. Your words of confidence and en ouragement sank deep into my heart, and ere I ever so cowardly I could but gather on them strength to carry out my con-ctions of right. With these feelings l all enter with conrage upon the discharge f not with the signal ability exhibited b my predecessor, which is still fresh in our sorrowng minds. Need I repeat that no eart feels more sensibly than mine thi eat affliction? In what I shall say on thi great affliction? In what I shall say on this occasion, I shall indulge in no petty spiril of anger and no feeling of revenge, but we have beheld a notable event in the history of mankind. In the midst of the American cople, where every citizen is taught to bey the laws and observe the rules of hristian conduct, the Chief Magistrate he beloved of all hearts—has been assassiva ed. And when we trace the crime to its -when we remember the sonre enuse—when we remember the sonrce whence the as sassin drew his inspiration and then look at the result, we stand yet more astonished at this most barbarous, most diabolical assassination. Such a crime as the murder of a great and good mau, honored, revered, beloved, and the hope of the people, springs not alone from solitary individuals of ever so desperate wicked-We can trace the cause through success teps, without enumerating them here, back of that source which is the spring of all our woes. No one can say that if the peretrator of this fiendish deed be arrested, is should not undergo the extreme enalty of the law known for crime. one will say that merey should inter-ose; but is he alone guilty? Here, gentlenen, you perhaps expect me to present ome indication of my future policy. One hing I will say: Every era teaches its les son. The times we live in are not without instruction. The American people must be taught, if they do not already feel, that treason is a crime, and must be punished that the government will not always bear with its enemies; that it is strong enough not only to protect, but to punish.

Go to the eode and examine the catalong of crimes. We there find arson laid down to come the catalong with its appropriate penalty. s a crime with its appropriate penalty Ve find there theft and robbery and mur r given as crimes, and there too we find last and highest of crimes—trea-n. With other and inferior offenses people are familiar with, but in peaceful history treason has been al nost unknown. The people must understand hat it is the blackest of crimes, and will be urely punished. I make the allusion, no to excite the already exasperated feelings of the public. Justice should guide our actions at this particular juncture. Let it be engraved on every heart that treason is a crime and traitors shall suffer its penalty. white we are appalled and overwhelmed at the fall of one man by the assasssin's hand shall we allow men, I care not by what weapons, to attempt the life of the State with impunity? While we stretch our minds comprehend the enormity of this assas-nation, shall we allow the nation to be asssinated? I speak in no spirit of unkindness.

I speak in no spirit of unkindness. I leave events of the future to be disposed of as they arise, regarding myself an humble instrument of the American people. In this, as in all things, justice and judgment should be determined by them. I do not harbor a bitter or, revengeful feeling towards any. In general terms would say that public morals and public opinion should be established upon the sure and inflexible principle of justice. When the question of exercising mercy comes before me, it will be considered calmly and ju-NEW: YORK, April 21.—Gold dull and confined exclusively to the exchange dealers.
